FAIRBANKS IN MONTANA.

Entire Population of Towns Turned Out to Hear the Candidate.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 27.-With a speech at Anaconda, Mont., late today, and two in this city tonight, Senator Fairbanks concluded his second day in Montana. The itinerary of today covered the ine of the Northern Pacific from Billings to this point and the party passed from the Upper Yellowstone country into the Galla-tin Valley, crossing the Con Divide, and arriving at Butte very little after schedule time.

In addition to Anaconda and Butte stops for speeches were made at Big Timber, Livingston, Bozeman, and Whitehall. At all these places except Bozeman, practically the entire population turned out to welcome the vice presidential candidate and his associates and the exceptional Bozeman was caused by a misunderstanding of the time of arrival.

Col. Colson Dead.

Middlesboro, Ky., Sept. 27 .-- Col. D. G. Colson, former congressman from the 18th, district and colonel of the Fourth Kentucky regiment during the Spanish-American war, died here to night. He was taken suddenly last night with nervous prostration and sank rapidly to the end.

He was one of the most prominent republicans in the state.

Internal Revenue Collections.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.-The monthly statement of the collections of the internal revenue shows, for the month of August, 1904, the total receipts were $19,132,439; an increase as compared with August, 1903, of Italian Cotton Industry.

The cotton industry of Italy increases in importance and is distributed among 730 factories and emplays over 135,000 hands. More than half the factories are worked by steam, the remainder by electricity and hydraulic power. Out of 80,000 looms employed, 60,000 are mechanical. The total production is now calculated at an annual value of over £12,000,000.

The Real Purpose of Grass.

A small city girl whose only playpromed is a paved court had the good luck recently to spend a day with her cousin in the country. Almost her first experience was a hard, full-length tumble out in the ficids. As she picked herself up she seemed surprised to mirs the bruises. Then she exclaimed delightedly: "Inn't it lock; that the grass was there!"

THE COW WAS CURIOUS.

She Visited a Saloon, a Store and a

Hotel During Her Promenade. The proverbial bull in the china was literally outclassed last night by a rebellious cow that broke away from its herd and raided two steres and a hotel near Sixteenth and Market streets.

The cow belonged to a herd which street. When the animal reached Seventeenth and Market streets, the cow became stubborn and refused to follow its companions, it trotted away and before the drovers could stop it entered the saloon of Edward Cronin at 1618 Market street.

A man and child came up the other way. The man looked sud—on such a sunny day! He was in mourning, and the little child (Oh. how can youth and crape he reconclied!)

A girl of four, perhaps; the pretty mite wore cheerless black instead of pink-and-white.

There were sixteen or cighteen men fined up around the bar, and when "Sookie' strolled calmly in many of them imagined that a friend of the nether regions had taken new form. There was a wild scamper and the place was described in a mirute. After knocking a few glasses from the bar the cow left the place.

It then calmly strolled into the dry goods store at 1616 Market street. A number of women were in the store shopping, and those that wore red douged out of sight in the twinkling of an eye. Then the others followed within a minute later.

Then the cow left the store and sauntered into the woman's entrance to the Keystone hotel, a few doors away. Night Clerk Hoff threw up As hands and fled. The animal Walked through the hallway and then for the dream-woven stillness of woods scattered the guests in the dining room. In the kitchen three women cooks dropped pans and dishes and skipped out of "Sookle's" way.

Then the cow tried to go upstairs. The staircase was narrow, however, and it became fast about balf-way up. With the help of several men the cow was pulled downstairs by its tail. It rejoined the rest of the herd and later tried to ascend the steps of the Arcade building, but the Grovers head-

Cape of Good Hope. Cape Point, which terminates the mighty headland known as the Cape of Good Hope, consists of a towering promontory of sandstone, which rises from the sea to an altitude of 840 feet. The lighthouse which here illuminates the meeting place of the Atlantic and Indian oceans is one of the most important and most useful of its kind. It is visible from a distance of thirty-six miles.
